

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

My thanks go first and foremost to the contributors and the referees. This issue exists because of the quality and range of contributions and the willingness of the contributors to engage with feedback and revise their work. The individuals who refereed the essays did so on tight timelines generously offering constructive responses, suggestions and insights. I am very grateful for their collaboration in the process of putting together this issue. I would also like to thank the national executive of ACRAWSA for supporting this issue and the editing process. I would like to especially thank Jane Haggis for her timely suggestions and Damien Riggs for developing the templates for the journal, his technical expertise and responding instantly to all moments of panic in the process of preparing the copy for publication. I would also like to thank Aileen Moreton-Robinson and Fiona Nicoll for their support and advice.
